“Household Hazardous Waste”

(SFX: LAWN MOWER MOTOR RUNNING, THEN TURNED OFF)

MAN : If it isn't lawn mowers, it's snow blowers and the like. Yeh, when you repair lawn and garden equipment, you can accumulate a lot o' stuff you really don't want to have around. Old gasoline, motor oil, batteries. “Household hazardous wastes” they're called. Things like leftover PESTICIDES, OLD PAINT, ANTI-FREEZE, OVEN CLEANERS, FURNITURE POLISH, DRAIN CLEANERS—there's probably some just sittin' around in some corner, or taking up shelf space at your house. So what do you do? Well, the right thing is to do what I do—take it to the nearest household hazardous waste collection center—where it can be recycled or disposed of properly. (SFX: LAWN MOWER STARTS UP, CONTINUES RUNNING) Because keeping our environment clean isn't just for my benefit—it's for all of us.

(MUSIC: LIGHT, BRIGHT, CLEAN, AIRY, “CIRCLY” MELODY)

Hey, we've got a good thing going here. “Kansas, Don't Spoil It!”
